August 6 to October 10, 2010

Kirkman House Museum’s latest exhibit Chapeaux examines the social trends of each era and how these events influenced the styles of women’s toppers. Beginning in the 1890s – La Belle Epoch, era of the Cancan, the Gibson Girl and the horseless carriage – the continues through the 1960s – the decade of Jacqueline Kennedy, Martin Luther King, Jr. and dramatic acts of change throughout the country. Each decade is represented by a variety of flamboyant, sleek and cheeky hats.

Wool from the festivities last year was spun, dyed and woven by local textile artist Vicki Sacha into a black and white shawl with fuschia accents. Come by the museum to purchase drawing tickets, $1 per ticket or $5 for six tickets.

Join us this year for your chance to win this beautiful shawl and witness the beginnings of next year's shawl.

Whispered Memories:
Psychometry - a term first coined in 1842 - is a form of extra sensory perception wherein a psychic connects to paranormal beings by making physical contact with an object formerly owned by deceased individuals. This practice was popularized in the Victorian era as they frequently lost family members prematurely.

In two sessions on Saturday, October 30 regional psychic Janice Lynch will use her psychometric medium as a means of connecting individuals with their ancestors. Tickets are $25 per person and include a two hour session with a group of no more than 25 people, tea and snacks. Ms. Lynch will connect with whomever makes themselves available to her during the session and share with living guests this communication.

Welcome board members:
Andrea Stout grew up in Coeur d'Alene and moved to Walla Walla to attend Walla Walla University. After graduating with a degree in English, she began work at Coffey Communications, Inc., where she is currently a staff writer. She's crazy about fruits and vegetables—and the availability of such wonderful local produce is just one of the reasons she loves this valley so much. As a board member, she looks forward to learning more about how a museum operates and getting involved with museum's collections and programming.

Joshua Van Donge – “I am a Walla Walla native with local roots on both sides of my family. As a youth, I was active in rock climbing and was an avid reader. In 1997, I went to St. John’s College, in Santa Fe, New Mexico, where students are guided through a chronological study of the "Great Books". After college, I travelled for two years, and then enrolled in the University of Washington to attain a Master of Architecture. Since 2005, I have been practicing architecture with a focus on very high-end traditional residential. In 2008, I started my own firm in New York, New York and then relocated to Walla Walla shortly thereafter. I feel very satisfied with the lifestyle that Walla Walla affords, and I plan to stay and to grow my business through the coming years or even decades.”
Volunteers Needed:
Kirkman House Museum has two full time employees whose salary is paid by a very generous grant from the Sherwood Trust. But, two people can only do so much. The museum relies on the dedication and generosity of its volunteers. Please consider volunteering your time to the Kirkman House.

Kirkman House Museum Hosts Secretary of State Sam Reed:
On August 18 Kirkman House had the distinct pleasure of hosting Secretary of State Sam Reed at a private reception at the museum. The forty guests included distinguished Walla Walla community members and elected officials. Secretary Reed is a dedicated supporter of Washington State heritage and has invested great amounts of time and effort to founding the Washington State Heritage Center on the legislative campus of the Capitol in Olympia.

Summer Pioneer Bandstand Concert Series
Throughout the 2010 summer months Kirkman House Museum partnered with the City of Walla Walla to host a series of concerts at the Pioneer Park Bandstand. These concerts continued the tradition of bringing our community together around the bandstand for afternoon entertainment and fun! Stay tuned for an expanded schedule in the summer of 2011!

How does your garden grow?
After the success of our Victorian Kitchen Garden project last year, we decided to do Kitchen Garden version 2.0! This year Carolyn Priest, Master Gardner and green thumb extraordinaire, spearheaded the project to great, green success. As a model Victorian Kitchen Garden, this project demonstrates to visitors how many Victorian families supplemented their diet by growing their own produce. Kirkman House uses the produce for our educational children’s programming and donates the rest to Helpline, our local food bank.

Fall classes at the museum
The museum is offering its popular Introduction to Spinning Class for adults this fall. Local spinner Mary Jane Fehrenbacher leads students through preparing fleece, setting up their wheel and spinning and plying yarn. Our fall Hands on Weaving class for kids will be taught by textile artist Susan Swayne over three Saturdays beginning October 9th. Youth ages 9-12 will construct their own pipe loom and use it to learn basic weaving skills. Susan will also teach a one day class Saturday, November 6th, on how to weave Christmas stockings using festive ribbons.

Visit the Kirkman House Museum website or contact us at 509-529-4373 for more information on these and other fall activities at the museum.
